

out their guns, Logan had already knocked out a soldier with his bare hands. Although the soldiers had guns in their hands, Logan was still able to quickly beat them up.

Lucas and Logan travelled through the alley-way in the city. They stopped behind a rubbish bin to take cover.

“When and where have we met?” asked Lucas.

“Not now, Lucas. We need to get out of this city without getting caught. Follow me.”

With the help of Logan, they easily slipped through the security checkpoint and left the city.

Once they were out of the city, Logan answered all the questions in Lucas’s head.

“I am your brother. After the robber left, I took you away from the crime scene because we were very afraid. But we were separated in an accident and I was unable to find you again until now.”

After days and nights of travelling, they made it into China. Logan was able to find the way to their old home. They asked for information about their family, and where the graves of their parents were. They finally located the graves.

“Mom and Dad, we’ve returned. I miss you so much. I’ve never forgotten you,” said Lucas in front of the graves.

“We’ll begin a new life and we’ll make you proud,” said Logan.

Lucas and Logan returned to the empty house of theirs. They started a new business and finished their journey. But new journeys lay right on their doorstep.
